On-Campus Housing

Nearly a quarter of U.S. community colleges provide on-campus housing

Note: On campus student housing/institutionally controlled housing include any residence hall or housing facility located on or off-campus that is owned or controlled by an institution and used by the institution in direct support of or in the manner related to the institution's educational purposes.

Over the last decade, public two-year colleges have seen a gradual growth of on-campus student housing. Between 2000 and 2010, 43 community colleges have established new student housing. Despite the increase, only 1% of two-year college students live on campus, compared to 14% of all undergraduates across the country.
